SCHOOL REPORT.

To the citizens of Auburn:

In presenting our report of the condition of your public schools for the financial year ending March, 1877, we would first of all express the conviction that under the favor of a kind Providence, a good degree of prosperity has attended them. No serious difficulties have occurred in any of our schools. The "double-headed" system of management has for this year worked harmoniously. The teachers selected by the prudential committee have, on the whole, been well qualified for their duties, and hence no cause for disagreement has arisen. This does not render the system itself any more praiseworthy, since there is constant liability to collision. And in this connection we would bear witness to the invariable cordiality and faithful co-operation of the prudential committees as well as teachers, thus rendering our labors a real pleasure.

In view of the wages paid, the teachers have brought to their work a degree of efficiency and zeal worthy of high commendation. If the scholars have not made due progress, the blame must not rest upon the teachers. But in the main, the schools have done well in view of existing circumstances, for it must be confessed that some of our school-rooms, and especially their furnishings, are not all they should be. Many school-rooms are still without suitable maps, charts, globes, and books of reference. There is not any large dictionary or fragment of one in any school in town. In some schools, also, there is too great a variety of text-books, thus increasing the number of classes and wasting the time of the teacher. A brief notice of the districts in numerical order may not be out of place in this report.

No. 1.—The summer and fall terms of this school were taught by Miss Jennie P. Hazelton, of Chester, with good success. At the beginning of the fall term she had some trouble with two boys who were unwilling to obey the rules of the school. Being admonished by the committee, they were taken out of school by their parents, after which there was excellent order and good progress.

Mrs. M. H. Underhill, an experienced and superior teacher, had charge of the school during the short winter term. Under her able instruction the scholars made excellent progress. The closing examination, particularly in arithmetic, reading and spelling, was an honor to teacher and scholars. The parents and patrons who were present in large numbers, may well cherish a laudable pride in their school, both for scholarship and good deportment.

No. 2.—The summer term of this school was taught by I. R. Eaton, of Manchester. Her success was fair in view of the chances she had. The same may be said of H. T. Grace, of Manchester, who taught the fall term of five weeks. He found about a dozen kinds of mental arithmetic in the school, and nearly half as many kinds of geography. In consequence of this his time was wasted, and but little accomplished in these branches. These facts did not come to the notice of the committee in season to correct them this year. They certainly demand attention before the next term commences.

No. 3.—This is the village school, and has the advantage of most others in a new and convenient school-room, and all the modern improvements, save books of reference and a suitable stove. The summer term, taught by Miss F. A. Plumer, was very successful. She possesses, in an eminent degree, the power to inspire zeal and enthusiasm in her pupils.

Miss Lizzie W. Heath taught a short fall term, with general satisfaction. During the term considerable attention was given by way of recreation, to vocal music, an exercise that demands more attention than it has hitherto received.

The winter term was taught by William P. Farmer, of Manchester, with a fair degree of success. Some of the larger scholars, more intent on having a "good time" than on acquiring knowledge, did not profit much by the school, nor the school by them. But most of the scholars were orderly and made fair progress in their studies.

No. 4.—This school was very fortunate in its choice of a teacher during the year. Few country schools can boast of better order or greater progress in its appropriate work, than this, in spite of its old school-room and meagre furnishings. Miss Lillian S. Barron deserves much credit for her marked success. To the scholars, likewise, much credit is due for their good deportment in and out of school, as well as for carefully-studied lessons. Their friends may well be proud of them.

No. 5.—This school, located on “Bunker Hill,” has also been favored with the services of a superior teacher. Miss Susie D. Hazelton, who taught both terms, seems to possess peculiar fitness for her work. The progress made by some of her scholars, particularly in penmanship and arithmetic, is quite remarkable. In all the branches taught, the work done was of a superior order. Good deportment in this school is evidently not a thing borrowed for examination day, but a permanent habit.

No. 6.—This is one of the small schools in town, but like Rhode Island among her sister states, is very active. Miss Mary L. Brown, who taught both the summer and fall terms, gave very good satisfaction. Some of her scholars appeared remarkably well, and promise to excel in scholarship. The higher class in arithmetic would do credit to any school in the State. In good deportment this school is also worthy of notice.

No. 7.—This was once known as the “brick school-house district,” but instead of the old brick house, it now can boast of a new and finely appointed school-room, except in the matter of books of reference. The summer term was taught by Miss Cora B. Brown, with a very moderate share of success.

Miss Ortensia M. Smith taught the fall and winter term, and gave universal satisfaction. Under her mild but firm management, the scholars made rapid progress in all their studies. The examination was a delightful occasion to all who were present. There was some good singing by the older scholars. Their deportment also is entitled to a word of commendation.

No. 8.—This school has the benefit of a new and neatly-appointed school-room. The summer term was taught by Miss Ella J. Young, and gave general satisfaction.

Walter H. Wright, of Manchester, taught the winter term with marked ability and success. On account of very severe weather and bad roads, the committee failed to be at the closing examination, which was doubtless in keeping with the previous good work done by teacher and scholars. During a visit on a former occasion, the school appeared remarkably well. The prompt and ready solution of examples on the black-board was truly creditable to teacher and scholars. They dared to speak loud enough to be heard. This is certainly one of the best schools in town. Its friends and patrons are entitled to much credit for the zeal and enterprise they have displayed.

The following are the names of scholars who have been neither absent nor tardy during the different terms:
